Overview

Creighton Knight understands that, in the fast-paced world of litigation, remaining personable and examining the fine details are essential. He eagerly tackles complex issues in his pursuit to arrive at the best possible solution for each client.

While in law school, Creighton clerked with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, where he gained valuable experience with Title VII discrimination matters. He also worked with small businesses through Wake Forest's Trade and Development Clinic, assisting in the development of cooperative operating agreements and workplace policies. Some of his interest in Administrative Law stems from his publication in the Wake Forest Journal of Business & Intellectual Property Law, where he thoroughly explored federal administrative regulations and rulemaking.

Among his pro bono endeavors at Wake Forest, Creighton assisted community members affected by predatory landlord practices and uninhabitable housing across North Carolina, and was also active with the Wills and Healthcare Advocacy Projects.

Beyond practicing law, Creighton enjoys supporting local live music, golfing at the local muni, and keeping up with stock car racing. Among his favorite places to travel are the South Carolina Lowcountry and the Kentucky Bourbon Trail.
