Overview

Grace loves a good challenge. Whether it's ascending Mt. Kilimanjaro, visiting all 50 states (so far, she's at 36), or pushing herself to evolve and grow professionally in her legal career, her mentality is to test her limits and strive to give her all. This determined attitude is what she applies to her practice and delivers to her clients as a civil litigator at Hedrick Gardner.

She cites her three sisters as a source of inspiration for many of her achievements, which include earning the position of Old Kivette Advocacy Counsel Moot Court Chair, and Vice President of the Campbell Environmental Law Society. She has experience handling a variety of legal disputes and is well equipped to handle any civil litigation matter that comes across her desk. She is familiar with drafting contracts, legal briefs, memos, and will and trust documents, and has attended several hearings involving a variety of matters, among them regarding environmental legal disputes and partition hearings.

Aside from traveling, some of Grace's favorite free time activities include hiking, kayaking, skiing, and embroidery.
