Experience

Cases or matters referenced are for illustrative purposes only, and do not represent the lawyer's or law firm's entire record. Each case is unique and must be evaluated on its own merits. The outcome of a particular case cannot be predicted based upon a lawyer's or law firm's past results. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome.

- Lindsay successfully defended an employer and their insurance carrier before the North Carolina Court of Appeals against an employee's claim that he sustained a compensable back and neck injury while lifting a tire. The claim was denied due to the claimants' failure to immediately report the injury and failure to report a work-related injury to the Urgent Care physician, despite subsequently having the back and neck injury related to his work treated by his orthopedist and neurologist. It was determined by the North Carolina Industrial Commission that plaintiff was not a credible witness and that there was no compensable injury. The Court of Appeals affirmed the Commission's determination.
