Overview

Willoe's insatiable curiosity combined with her passion to help others results in creative problem-solving for her clients. As a workers' compensation attorney at Hedrick Gardner, Willoe explores and investigates all available options to best advise each client based on their unique needs. Her passion for her practice is fueled by its fast-paced nature and the recognition that no two cases are alike.

Before joining Hedrick Gardner, Willoe served in the office of the Mecklenburg County Public Defender, where she defended hundreds of accused individuals, working alongside them through initial appearances, trials, and sentencing.

Originally from the Northeast U.S., Willoe later moved south for law school and eventually made her way to Charlotte. She enjoys yoga, horseback riding, and exploring new restaurants in her free time.
