Charlotte partner Brooks Miller began a one-year term as Vice Chair of the North Carolina Association of Defense Attorneys General Liability section. In her role, she will be responsible for guiding professional development, networking, and communication initiatives for members of the practice area.

Brooks has spent her career defending individuals sued after car accidents and slip-and-fall incidents. Much of her work involves guiding first-time defendants through litigation, serving as both counselor and advocate as they navigate an unfamiliar and often stressful process.

We are excited to see her taking on this statewide role for the benefit of General Liability practitioners across the state.
