Raleigh partner Catherine Lee has joined the North Carolina Bar Foundation Board of Directors, beginning a three-year term on June 27th.

The Foundation works to unite the legal profession's talent and resources in service of public good, organizing programs throughout the year aimed at making legal services accessible to all North Carolinians, regardless of their ability to pay.

Catherine, who leads the Administrative and Employment Law practices at our firm, recently completed terms as Secretary of the N.C. Bar Association Administrative Law Section Council while also serving as the President of the PTA at her children's school.

We're proud to see Catherine bring her dedication to Administrative and Employment Law, and to her community, to this important statewide role.
