Taylor VanScoy makes resolving disputes top priority, taking a scrupulous and focused approach to each matter and determining an ideal outcome for every client.

She earned her JD at Willamette University College of Law and has been admitted to the bar in both North Carolina and Washington, D.C. While in law school, Taylor also worked on the Willamette Journal of International Law and Dispute Resolution as Executive Editor.

In her free time, Taylor enjoys listening to news and investigative journalism podcasts, reading, hiking with her fiancé and rescue dog, and traveling. She also loves exploring National Parks around the country and has visited Crater Lake, Mount Rainier, Zion, Grand Canyon, Acadia, and New River Gorge.
