Taylor Distefano is proudly following in the footsteps of her father, a member of the United States Navy JAG Corps. She goes the extra mile in pursuit of the best possible outcome for her clients, putting her passion for learning to work.

A dedicated researcher, Taylor enjoys digging deep into the details of each case. This skill was showcased in a two-page article published by the Orthopedic Research and Education Foundation featuring her work and research for the organization.

During school, Taylor studied abroad for a semester at Manchester University and worked as a research assistant.

When she is not practicing law, Taylor enjoys cheering for the Boston Bruins, attending standup comedy shows, and traveling.
