North Carolina State Bar

Destined to be a lawyer since childhood, Jordan Stomean has always challenged family and friends to prove their arguments with evidence. Today, as a practicing workers' compensation defense attorney, she continues following the evidence. For every workplace injury claim, Jordan investigates the facts and evaluates medical evidence. This approach allows her to negotiate fair settlements and vigorously defend clients in administrative hearings and court proceedings. Ultimately, Jordan works to protect the interests of her clients while ensuring injured employees receive the appropriate benefits under the law.

When it comes to client relationships, Jordan strives to establish a foundation built on trust, honesty, and transparency. Her clients appreciate this investment in their relationship particularly when navigating tough conversations.

Prior to joining Hedrick Gardner, Jordan practiced as a plaintiff workers' compensation attorney. Equipped with experience from both sides of the aisle, she has a deep understanding of how a plaintiff's attorney builds a case and uses that knowledge to formulate an effective defense strategy.

When not working, Jordan enjoys spending time with friends and family, having game nights, and cheering on the Appalachian State Mountaineers and Florida State Seminoles football teams. She also enjoys traveling, cruising, reading, and taking walks with her dog, Winston.
